Presidential Ponderings

SEAALL President
Karen B. Douglas

Head, Collection Services -- Duke University School of Law
919-613-7116 -- douglas@law.duke.edu

As I write this, the 2010 holiday season is beginning. This is a time of year when a flurry of activity is taking place. SEAALL is experiencing its own flurry of activity right now. Our Handbook Revision sub-committee is hard at work making revisions and adding current information to the SEAALL Handbook, which is considered the "bible" of our organization. Many of the changes have occurred because new technology has altered the way we do business. These changes are now being reflected in the handbook.

In addition, Carol Nicholson and the Scholarship Committee have been hard at work reviewing scholarship applications. Student Scholarship winners will be announced shortly. More money has been allotted this year for scholarships and awards, since the poor economy has made the need greater.

Carol Watson and her Program Committee have come up with an excellent selection of programs for next year's Annual Meeting in Columbia, SC. New programming formats, such as "Ignite" presentations which cover 6 mini topics in a half hour slot, and poster sessions will be used for the first time. I'm looking forward to these programming innovations. Pamela Melton and the Local Arrangements Committee are also making plans to entertain us in grand fashion while we're in Columbia. I'm anxiously awaiting my first trip to that fascinating city.

Not to be outdone by the SEAALL Program Committee, our Education and Publications Committee, which is responsible for submitting program proposals to AALL, had 3 programs accepted for the AALL annual meeting next year in Philadelphia. Congratulations to Jennifer Behrens and her committee for this achievement.

Paula Tejeda and the Nominations Committee have come up with an excellent slate of candidates for our upcoming election. We will elect a vice-president/president elect, a treasurer and a member-at-large. I am pleased to say that all 3 types of law libraries are represented on the slate. Biographical information about our candidates will be included in this newsletter.

All of the work of this organization is done by volunteers willing to share their time and talents to create an organization that will serve your needs. SEAALL wouldn't succeed without them. When Carol Watson sends out her call for volunteers, please be willing to respond. I hope to see many of you at next year's Annual Meeting in Columbia, SC. I wish you all a happy and safe holiday season and a prosperous new year.

This Newsletter is provided in a paperless format.

Powerpoint is Dead

Carol Watson, Director of the Law Library

Wendy E. Moore, Acquisitions Librarian

University of Georgia, Alexander Campbell King Law Library

PowerPoint is dead. At least the PowerPoint filled with bullet points being read word-for-word by the presenter – a mainstay of presentations for the past 15 years. In its place is a new, more dynamic use of presentation software - utilizing engaging images, mind focusing text, and quick timing to reach out to audiences.

At AALL 2010 in Denver last July, in our presentation “Using Pecha Kucha to Enhance Your Presentations,” we introduced one way to invigorate your use of PowerPoint. You can read more about the presentation in the September/October 2010 AALL Spectrum program review “Pecha Ku-What?” by Donna M. Fisher, but it boils down to structuring your presentation around 20 slides, shown for 20 seconds each on automatic advance. No stopping, no going back, and you must know your material!

There are other similar formats gaining popularity. Ignite also has 20 slides, but shown on automatic advance for only 15 seconds a piece, making the total presentation only 5 minutes long. 6 x 6 is a grouping of 6 presentations that each last 6 minutes long, but contain no set rules beyond that, so you might not even use presentation software at all. Battledecks is a new presentation style being seen frequently at library conferences. Presenters (“contestants”) are given a topic ahead of time, but the PowerPoint slides, usually 10-15 slides, are prepared by someone else. The slides are first seen by the presenter during the actual presentation, making the challenge to synch content to the slides in front of an audience.

Whether you’re creating a Pecha Kucha, Ignite, 6 x 6, Battledecks, or traditional PowerPoint presentation, the following tips can be helpful for enhancing your presentation:

- Smile. Speak confidently, clearly and loudly. The way you deliver your first words set the tone for the presentation. Begin by strongly and decisively establishing your presence.
- Summarize. Present a brief roadmap of your presentation. What should the audience expect to learn from you?
- Enunciate. Speak directly into the microphone. Don’t forget, if you turn your head to explain something on the screen, a fixed microphone doesn’t turn with you. The audience cannot hear when you are facing the screen.
- Create. Good presentations uncover something unexpected. Whether your presentation is personal, funny or professional, the audience wants to learn something they haven’t thought about before. Don’t just describe what is on the screen or read the text of bullet points.
- Elaborate. Don’t forget that the audience is interested in your thought process. How did you arrive at your conclusions? What mistakes did you make along the way?
- Breathe. The audience needs pauses to digest and reflect upon your content. Consciously add in silence by including pauses on every slide. Try to eliminate distracting vocal noises such as ums or ers.
- Rehearse. Finishing your slides doesn’t mean that you are ready for your presentation. Practice until you feel a relaxed rhythm taking over your speech. Then you are on your way to being well-prepared.
- Simulate. Practice standing up just as you will be on the day of your presentation. Do not rehearse by simply practicing to yourself at your desk. If you need to regularly glance at your notes, you are not ready to present yet.
- Simulate. Practice standing up just as you will be on the day of your presentation. Do not rehearse by simply speaking aloud at your desk. If you need to regularly glance at your notes, you are not ready to present yet.

Most importantly, have fun. When you are enthusiastic about your topic and confident about your presentation, your mood will be infectious.

Now that we've whetted your appetite for trying new presentation formats, you'll get the chance to see these formats in action at the upcoming SEAALL Annual Meeting, April 14-16, 2011. One of the program sessions will feature 6 Ignite presentations on the following topics:

- Law Library Lessons from the Godfather Trilogy – management techniques, growing your influence, and other helpful tips from Corleone family.
- Why is Ally McBeal behind our Circ Desk? – implementing a popular DVD collection in your library.
- Partnering with Student Journals for Delivery of Library Services – developing an outreach program to streamline services to journals
- NCSTL.org: Forensic Library Without Walls – a description online resources available from the National Clearinghouse for Science, Technology and the Law.
- Democratizing the Law: Pinch me, I'm dreaming! – could we be on the verge of a world where the law is free?
- Advocating Adoption of Creative Commons Content – how to advocate for an open licensing model.

We look forward to seeing you at SEAALL 2011 and we hope you enjoy experimenting with new presentation formats. Long live PowerPoint!

As budgets become increasingly restrictive it is good to know that SEAALL is still able to provide scholarships and grants to assist members in need who desire to pursue professional development opportunities. Of course money is never truly free. SEAALL is able to fund scholarships and grants through membership dues and good fiscal management. Take advantage of this opportunity – apply for one of the scholarships below by February 25 and you may be the fortunate recipient of “free money”.

Lucile Elliott Scholarship: Provides financial aid for any purpose reasonably designed to improve one's career in law librarianship. The amount of the award will vary depending on the proposed activity.

Kathryn P. Mattox Memorial Scholarship: Named in honor of Kathryn P. Mattox, this scholarship is intended to help defray the cost of attendance at the AALL or SEAALL annual meetings.

If you missed these opportunities, there are still more possibilities for those of you hoping to attend AALL in July at <http://www.aallnet.org/chapter/seaall/scholarship/index.htm>. Also, do not forget to check AALL and SIS offerings at <http://www.aallnet.org/committee/grants/grants.asp> and http://www.aallnet.org/services/sch_edu.asp to find a number of grants & scholarships that will ensure a strong SEAALL presence in Philadelphia and provide other educational support.

The SEAALL Newsletter Committee in no way endorses any candidate through this forum. The below information has been provided by the candidates for informational purposes.

SEAALL Candidate - Marcia Burris

SEAALL Vice-President / President Elect Candidate

Statement:

I am honored to be a candidate for SEAALL Vice-President/President Elect. In the current challenging economic environment it is as important as ever that librarians are well-aligned to the missions of our organizations, whether we work in law firms, law schools or other types of institutions. SEAALL can help us to succeed in our roles by aligning to our needs and providing excellent educational programs and opportunities for growth through participation and interaction with other professionals.

My own career in law libraries began when I took a part-time college job as a library filer, and discovered that I liked the law library better than my intended profession. In 1990, I founded a library staffing and management service, and over the course of that business I gained valuable experience in a wide variety of law firm and government libraries. After ten years of running my business in the San Francisco area, I relocated to South Carolina. Since then I have had the pleasure (and sometimes challenge) of managing the Ogletree Deakins Library during a period of rapid firm growth from 150 to over 500 attorneys in 40 offices.

I believe that professional development of individual librarians, the status of librarians in our organizations, and the future of law librarianship are all closely connected, and fundamentally dependent upon each other. I am excited about the prospect of working in the role of Vice President/President-Elect to continue building on the leadership of others in providing professional development opportunities for all members of our association, and I would welcome the chance to serve you in this capacity.

Current Position:

Library Manager, Ogletree Deakins Nash Smoak & Stewart, Greenville, SC 2001-

Previous Position:

Owner & Principal, Burris Library Associates, San Francisco, CA (1990-2000)

Presenter and Moderator "Emergency Preparedness: Planning for the Unthinkable" at Piedmont Library Association Winter Meeting, Greenville SC, February 2002.

SEAALL Candidate - Edward T. Hart

SEAALL Vice President / President Elect Candidate

Statement:

Building relations and networks is an important part of law librarians' professional development, and doing so in the Southeast as part of SEAALL is central for those who call this corner of the country home. Often, the performance of our primary duties, service to our users and maintenance of our collections, is aided by our contacts in SEAALL. The knowledge gained from others within our regional network whether it is through direct assistance in answering a reference question or ideas shared at our annual meeting makes us better librarians. Being a member of SEAALL is an optimum venue for such exchanges. To achieve such success, we need a successful chapter, and to be successful, volunteers must take up the duties needed to run the organization and support the development of its members.

I welcome the opportunity to serve SEAALL as Vice-President / President Elect and to continue the effective management of the chapter seeking to meet the needs of the chapter's members.

SEAALL Candidate - Jason R. Sowards

SEAALL Member-at-Large Candidate

Statement:

I am honored to be nominated for the Member-at-Large position. SEAALL was the first professional law librarianship association I joined, and I did so as a first-semester library student, clueless about what contributions I might possibly make to law librarianship. That cluelessness was due in large part to not knowing how to actually get involved. SEAALL made answering that question easy. Five years and several committee appointments later, I've been privileged to do so much such as giving scholarships to deserving librarians and helping select the educational programs we will attend in Columbia in 2011. I hope I am given the opportunity to serve as a Member-at-Large so that I can continue to be involved in shaping the future of the largest, and most fabulous, chapter of AALL.

In June, Jennifer Wondracek started at UF as our Instructional Services Reference Librarian. Besides reference duties, Jennifer will be teaching advanced legal research, including distance learning options. Jennifer earned her MLIS from University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee and her JD from University of North Carolina. Prior to UF, she worked at the law libraries at Elon University and Barry University. Active in the profession, she currently serves on the AALL Copyright Committee and is the webmaster for the Government Documents Special Interest Section.

In August, Shira Megerman joined the UF faculty as Student Services Reference Librarian. She is a recent graduate of the information science program at University of Missouri and previously earned her JD from Washburn University. While in library school, Shira worked as a Research Specialist at the University of Missouri- Kansas City Leon E. Bloch Law Library. This is Shira's first professional position, and she is energetically carving out her role in this newly established position, which was created to forge stronger ties between the library and our students.

At the end of June, Kathie Price retired as Associate Dean for Library and Technology, capping her long distinguished career in law librarianship that included directorships at University of Minnesota, Law Library of Congress, New York University and finally University of Florida.

SEAALL Library Profile: Florida Coastal School of Law Library and Technology Center By Renee Weatherholt

The Florida Coastal School of Law Library and Technology Center (LTC) moved to a renovated building in 2006 in order to accommodate a growing student body. The new building is 47,000 square feet and serves over 1,700 students and faculty.

The LTC offers a variety of spaces to accommodate various study styles and habits. In addition to traditional tables, the LTC offers 184 individual study carrels and 25 group study rooms. Study rooms are equipped with dry erase boards for collaborative work and several are also outfitted with televisions and aDVD/VHS combos. The study rooms can be checked out for a period of 3 hours and students can use an electronic reservation system to reserve rooms up to 48 hours in advance.

The LTC also offers workshops! During the Fall 2010 semester they offered over 300 small group workshops with nearly 2,000 students attending. Each workshop typically lasts 30-50 minutes and the librarians have tackled a wide range of topics. The librarians have also created Research Webcasts to assist students with electronic legal research.

A special thanks to Colleen Martinez Skinner. Thanks for your help gathering information and pictures.

The Reference Desk motto is "We're here to help." The librarians love the chance to be able to engage, educate and encourage their patrons.

SEAALL Business Meeting Minutes

July 12, 2010

Karen called the meeting to order at 5:35 p.m. The meeting was held at the Denver Hyatt Regency Hotel.

Karen discussed the fact our meetings had been put into the AALL Conference website and “My AALL” planner but were not listed in the printed program. Karen introduced the Board and announced current committee chairs.

The minutes from the Williamsburg Business meeting will be on the website soon so they weren’t approved at this meeting and will have to be approved at the next Business meeting.

It was moved and seconded to pass the Treasurer’s Report.

Immediate past committee chairs were offered the chance to report on things they had done since the Williamsburg meeting. There were no committee reports.

Jim Heller reported there were 199 people who attended the Williamsburg conference.

Rebekah Maxwell reported on next year’s conference in South Carolina on April 14 – 16, 2011. Plans are well underway. The theme is “Save the Date for the Party in the Palmetto State”. The conference hotel is the Hilton Columbia Center and bookmarks are available at the SEAALL table in the Exhibit Hall.

Karen then reported Stetson is hosting the conference in 2012 and we are looking for volunteers for 2013 and beyond.

Old Business

The SEAALL Handbook is going to be revised. Jennifer Behrens and our Education and Publications Committee assisted by the Articles & Bylaws Committee as well as the new Handbook Chairperson are in charge of the revisions. Karen asked committee chairs to update their parts of the handbook.

New Business

Because it is expensive to travel SEAALL should look into sponsoring regional programs. BNA offers grants for this kind of program and we will explore applying for such a grant. One possible program would be a technical services webinar.

Carol Billings told us that at the AALL business meeting it was reported this is probably the last year of the closing banquet. Our membership then discussed how this might affect what we do at future AALL meetings. Karen served on the AALL Annual Meeting Revision Committee and she gave a brief report of their findings. Maureen Eggert asked for audience feedback on the possibility of getting CLE credit for programs. The membership was in favor of finding out how this might be done.

The meeting was adjourned at 6:00 p.m.

Respectfully submitted,
Sally A. Irvin

A Cold Winter

SEAALL Newsletter Editor

Brian C. Barnes

Deputy Law Library Director

Loyola University New Orleans College of Law

As this edition goes to press many of the SEAALL Libraries are facing a cold winter. I not only refer to the temperatures as even in New Orleans we faced a low of 26 last night and other schools are literally digging out this morning but also to the “cold winter” of having to make hard decisions regarding collection development, attending educational programming, and even layoffs in some areas. I don’t believe the discussion that libraries are failing and are soon to be displaced by technologies such as iPads, Google Books, and any number of other alternatives. I remember something I learned in library school that is basic causation, and crucial when applied to today’s society. Libraries have long been known for books, but more basically books are bound tomes of information. In short libraries are homes to information whether in papyrus, paper, or on the Net. Combine this with the presumption that patrons (of both student and attorney variety) are seemingly more pressed for time and more undertrained than their predecessors in how to find the information they need our cause is more needed today than ever before.

These two ideas of the cold winter of hard decisions counterbalanced with the increasing need for libraries (in my opinion) make this a crucial time to make excellent decisions and think of the big picture. Should your library be beholden to online databases for the ease of updating and lack of physical space? Can we trust the vendors, both large and small, to continue providing us access in formats we desire (whether print, fiche, or electronic format)? Can we trust our administrations to live up to their financial promises regarding out budgets or should we be overly cautious knowing a 20% cut can’t just be done in a world of yearly subscriptions and standing orders? In reflecting on these grand and important questions I propose that the answers will be different from one library to another, from Miami to Lexington we face tough issues and uncertain times but if nothing else we have the experience and the expertise to know how to access that vital information to best face and survive this cold winter.
